WORK STARTED ON LOCAL CANNERY

COUNCIL APPROVES LOCAL FISH CANNERY LEASE

TEST PILES DRIVEN AT SITE

Work was started yesterday morning on the site of the new cannery on the Pacific harbor which will represent an investment of over $300,000 and employ approximately 900.

Duncan and Harrelson drove two test piles yesterday morning and dug a number of test holes to determine the type of foundation which will be put under the cannery structure.

Leaders of Richmond yesterday visited the site of the new plant, on South Tenth street, and watched the operation which was the first labor performed for the construction of a major plant in Richmond for some years. As the pile driver groaned and pounded, Richmond citizens saw the first move in the fulfillment of their dreams of seeing a large industrial area developed on the waterfront.

The location of the cannery here by the Parr-Richmond Terminal corporation was announced Wednesday morning in the RECORD HERALD and brought to citizens of Richmond the first word that a program of industrial development which has been in the making for some years was actually under way.

A report on the tests made yesterday will be made immediately to William Knowles, architect, of Oakland, who is drawing the plans for the structure. Knowles, it is expected, will require about two weeks to complete his plans and will then call for bids for the plant. Immediate construction is to be started as officials of the company hope to have the plant in operation for a part of next year's cannery season.

An investment of slightly more than $300,000 will be represented in the plant. Of this amount, $185,000 will be for the building, which is to be of concrete, and $115,000 for machinery and equipment. The structure will contain 92,000 square feet of floor space. According to operators of the company, the plant will operate to capacity for at least 10 months of the year. From 700 to 900 persons will be employed. Of this number, approximately 30 per cent will be men and 70 per cent women.

The site, containing approximately nine acres, lies between Tenth and Fourteenth streets, and is just north of the Ford factory site on the inner harbor.

CLEMENCEAU IN LIFE FIGHT

PARIS, Oct. 21.—UP—His war time slogan of "Victory Against All Odds" prevails today as Georges Clemenceau pulled himself from the shadow of death. Stricken Sunday night by a heart attack, complicated by a slight congestion of the right lung, the 85-year-old former premier improved steadily today. His vitality was so remarkable as to compel the doctors to say this afternoon that the famous "Tiger of France" had good chances to recover.

Dr. Charles Lavy, heart specialist, declared nevertheless that Clemenceau must be "constantly watched."

"Another attack may occur momentarily or possibly not for weeks," Dr. Lavy said. "M. Clemenceau worked too hard writing his final book of memoirs, he needs a rest."

Up to noon the "Tiger" had received 11 administrations of oxygen and two fresh tubes were taken to his flat in the Rue Franklin. Dr. Jean Walter was called to inject camphor and steady the heart.

OPPOSITION TO RULE VOICED

The city of Richmond has a new contractors' ordinance.

The Builders' Exchange and the contractors asked for it.

The Richmond Real Estate Board opposed it.

The council adopted it by the unanimous vote of the members, all being present with the exception of councilman Mattie A. Chandler.

The ordinance was passed at the meeting of the city council last night, and provides for a license of $50 a year, and each contractor must put up a bond of $3,000.

When the matter first came up a communication was read from the Builders' Exchange, in which it urged the adoption of the new law, claiming that it would be of benefit to the people of the city as a whole.

Next came a letter from the Richmond Real Estate Board, signed by William Metz, the president, in which it opposed the ordinance, asserting that the law was not designed for revenue, but to keep out outside contractors, that it would erect a barrier about the city, and keep out competition, whereas the people of the city who desired to build homes should receive the benefit of competition.

It was further stated that the license and bond were meaningless as the state had enacted a law which covered the same ground. (Continued on Page 8)

Newton Parrish of the First National Bank of Lamar a year and one-half ago, were sentenced to hang by Judge J. E. Hollenbeck in district court here today.

The date of execution was set for the week of Feb. 15. Before passing sentence on the two hirelings of the Fleagle bandit gang, the court overruled a motion for a new trial, but allowed defense attorneys 90 days in which to prepare a bill of exceptions.

The situation in Lamar is tense tonight following recent numerous reports of the presence in the section of armed men who made inquiry regarding the Lamar jail where the bandits are held. The guard has been still further increased and extraordinary precautions against a possible move to liberate the trio are being taken.

New Sewer For Stege District Proposed

In a written communication to the city council last night, Ross L. Caffee, engineer of the Stege Sanitary district gave out the information that the two outfall sewers of the sanitary district were sitting up at the outlet, and that something would have to be done about the matter.

There are 3,300 lots in the sanitary district, of which 2,300 lots are in the city of El Cerrito, 320 lots in the city of Richmond (Richmond Annex) and the balance are in the county.

The sewers were put in under a $75,000 bond issue some fifteen years ago, and there are bonds outstanding amounting to $15,000.

Caffee suggested to the council a conference be held and the city ask the supervisors to start proceedings for the formation of an assessment district, and that new outfall sewers be put in.

He stated in his letter that in the last sixteen years still had filled in to the depth of fourteen feet, that money was being spent every year to keep the present outlets open, but it was only a matter of a short time until they would be permanently closed.

It is estimated that the new sewers as proposed, would cost in the neighborhood of $100,000, and it is stated the engineer's fees on the job will amount to approximately $5,000.

The council referred the matter to City Manager J. A. McVittie, City Attorney T. M. Carlson, Superintendent of Streets E. A. Hoffman, and the sewer committee for a report.

PLANT TO BE BUILT AT ONCE

First reading of an ordinance was given at the meeting of the city council last night by which the city of Richmond consents to the Parr Terminal corporation leasing to Joe Crivello, a tract of land on the outer harbor, for the term of forty-seven years, for a fish cannery.

This is the second cannery that is assured to Richmond. It will be located just north and east of the present outer terminal buildings.

Under the terms of the proposed lease which has been entered into with Crivello by the Parr corporation, the rentals, service charges, and handling charges from the new industry will bring a monthly revenue of from $450 to $750. The lease is on a graduated basis, and the rentals increase from year to year.

Under the terms of the lease Crivello is given the privilege of assigning it within six months to a corporation to be formed under the laws of California.

The building is to be erected for the cannery will contain 10,000 square feet of space. Work on them must commence within ninety days, and the factory must be ready for operation by the starting of the next sardine season, which is about April 1.

Outer Harbor Berth
The lease gives Crivello 25 feet of berthing space on the outer harbor, and also allows him to install conveyors for the unloading of fish from the boats to the cannery.

Crivello agrees to install the same type of machinery as is used by the P. E. Booth company at Pittsburg, or of equal grade.

Most of the fish to be used are caught near the Farallone islands, and when the plant is in operation, there will be a constant stream of boats arriving at Richmond and discharging their cargo.

$125,000 Investment
The plant will employ from 150 to 250 people. The buildings and machinery will represent an investment of $125,000.

During the coming week City Manager J. A. McVittie, City Engineer E. A. Hoffman, and T. A. Goodrick of the Parr corporation will visit Monterey and Pittsburg and inspect the cannery at these places and make an investigation of the machinery used.

Fred D. Parr was at the meeting of the council and went into the details of the lease with the members.

There Is Another Story

WOMEN, especially younger ones who still cherish a bit of romantic idealism, even if they hide it under a heavy veil of reading the unhappy, world story of married life, the story revealed in the testimony of divorce and separation suits, in the ever-rising divorce rate, in the sociological surveys of what is wrong with marriage, in realistic novels of conjugal misery. There seems to be a steady accumulation of proof that marriage is the painful death of love instead of a living growth and development; that two persons, no matter how deeply they think they care in the beginning, must come to quarrel and hate and finally fly from each other, that romantic love's perfect fairy-story ending and as they lived happy ever after, is—just another fairy-story.

The girl in love must be saying to herself, these days, "Is marriage always a failure? And if it is—oh, what's the use?"

There is another story, the often-told story of unhappy married life is not the only one. There is another story. It, too, is a story of fact—not of sentimental fantasy. The young man and woman who marry for love may remain married for the same reason, all the days of their life. When the life of our ends, they never find the world quite the same again. They live, the deeper their unspoken prayer that—like Phileas and Baucis in the lovely old Greek fable—they may die together.

NOT only pessimists but romantic idealists should take heart from the visit of Ramsay MacDonald, for his was one of those marriages of which the story should be told pour encourager les autres. He himself has told it, in one of the most beautiful tributes a man ever paid his wife. Like Browning, MacDonald might have said, "Take them, love, the book and heart to gether."

She was dead when "Margaret Ethel MacDonald: A Memoir" was published, but her husband, like Browning, living, too, is his evaluation of the comradeship, the community of interest, the loyal tenderness, the sheer happiness that their many years of marriage meant to both.

Here is the golden rule for wives that Margaret MacDonald is supposed to have followed:

Always to stand behind this man, who perhaps might help the world to better things. To teach him the dreamer—to be practical. To help him not to succumb to criticism or defeat. Not to yield to depression and discouragement. Not to grow bitter under heckling. Never to lose sight of the goal in the long, hard climb leading up to it. Always to surround him with every bit of peace and comfort and harmony possible to give any man in any life. Do you wonder that she and her husband had such years of happiness? Now that she is gone, do you wonder that her daughter, Isabel, is her father's constant companion, that he "likes to have her around?"

WEVE just encountered the story of another great man's happy marriage: a union, for more than a quarter-century, of sustained love and loyalty and delight in each other. It is the story revealed simply and convincingly in "Up To Now," the autobiography which Alfred E. Smith has dedicated "To My Companion on the Journey—My Wife."

He admits, with a homely tenderness, that "she thinks I am the greatest man in the world," he adds, with frank fervor, "I have no hesitancy in saying to the world in which my life would have been empty without her. My greatest pleasure is sharing with her the honor, joy and satisfaction that have come to me from political success."

But the two sure proofs, to a woman's keen insight, that here is a truly happy marriage are two utterances by Mrs. Smith when her husband quotes, "When I was nominated for sheriff," he says, "she expressed satisfaction by the simple words: 'Now you'll be home to dinner every night!'"

And when he broke the news that he was defeated for the Presidency, Mrs. Smith's first and only comment was: "It's all for the best. It's God's will. Some of the things against you might have carried out. Aside from all that, we will see more of you."

That's how two feel when they are truly married—they want to be together because they are happiest that way. And marriage CAN be "that way"—can it not?

Since egg yolks are rich in protein and fat, their presence in the sauce to be served with the vegetable is significant.

Two egg yolks
Four tablespoons cream

Place in a small saucepan and cook over low heat until the butter is melted. Add the egg yolks and cream and beat with a wire whisk until the mixture is thick and smooth. Season with salt and pepper.

Hollandaise sauce has been a culinary staple for centuries. Even experienced chefs hesitated before it. And yet with a double-boiler to control the cooking process, the sauce is child's play. A hairline care is imperative in the preparation of this sauce. The double-boiler is essential to prevent the eggs from curdling. The heat should be low and the mixture stirred constantly.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Ambassador Debuti of Japan gave a dinner a few nights ago to Admiral Nomura, the Japanese Minister of the Navy, who was the central figure in a round of entertainment incident to the arrival of two Japanese cruisers in American waters.

It was a stag dinner, but the usual social amenities prevailed. Undersecretary of State Cotton found himself on one side of Admiral Nomura. Conversation lagged, as conversation with long as President Hoover continues to insist that dinner parties shall be conducted as though Bishop Cannon and Mrs. Willebrand were hidden behind a screen.

"Are you married, Admiral?" inquired Undersecretary Cotton in the manner which comes to be known as wearing out the left elbow.

"Oh, yes," the Japanese naval officer replied.

"Have you any children?" The response was an affirmative one.

"Do they pay the slightest bit of attention to you?" the State Department official pursued just to make conversation.

"Pardon, I do not understand," Admiral Nomura countered, suspiciously.

"I have children and I wondered if Japanese children are like our American children in thinking they know too much to respect their parents," Secretary Cotton explained.

Admiral Nomura then saw the point and he thought it was a magnificent joke. Another American seated nearby remarked that Mr. Cotton was a born diplomat and had more tact than a lot more widely advertised experts at repartee.

Hicklin Yates, erstwhile secretary, guide and counselor to former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, has been in Washington for a day or two.

Having been privileged to be included in a small group of newspaper men who tendered "Jim" Reed a farewell dinner when he left Washington for his retirement from the Senate and knowing that Yates is loyalty itself where the "saw voiced raven of the Kaw River" is concerned, I asked how Reed felt about being away from the Senate.

"It is the most amazing part of my whole life," Hicklin exploded. "No power on earth could have persuaded me that he would readjust himself to any existence outside of the Senate. You know how he felt about the battles in the Senate and how he loved them. I knew him a lot better."

"To-day he is the happiest man I ever saw, just sitting back there in Kansas City and believing that you fellows down here in Washington are putting on a show for his special benefit. He reads every line of a Senate debate. He never once expresses a desire to be back in it. He is having the time of his life. He is applying his great talents now as a citizen of Kansas City."

"Is he off of us for life?" I asked. "I think he will enjoy an occasional visit to Washington but he is having so much fun in life and in business at the moment, I wouldn't want you to think he is eating out his heart because he is not here," Yates admitted.

By Pierre Van Paassen

Mohammed

Goes On

Missionaries in Africa, chiefly in Egypt, report that for every "heathen" they bring to Christianity, the Moslem missionaries get ten converts. They wonder where lies the appeal of the religion of the Prophet. Apart from the very excellent promises held out to the Mohammedan believer as to the blissfulness of his estate in the world to come, with dancing girls and plenty of good times, the African native can more easily understand the purely materialistic dogma of "Allah is Allah and Mohammed is His Prophet" than, for instance, the Christian dogmas of the Trinity and others. The farther fact that every denomination feels called upon to send missionaries of its own to convert the poor heathen must produce considerable confusion in the native mind. In the Egyptian Sudan there are no less than twenty denominations working among the native population, with varying degrees of success. American churches are represented. But even when they get a man to come to their chapel, the missionaries explain, he will usually walk back to his native magicians and voodooists of Africa the old traditionalism. Mohammedan traditionalism as they all are in the East, the work of making them break with old tribal customs, interwoven with religious superstitions, makes the work of the Christian missionaries no light task. They are made happy, however, by the saying of the founder of their church, who declared that there is more joy in heaven over one sinner who turns back than over ninety and nine who have no need of justification.

Amanullah's

Stunt

There is some ground to the European press as to which of the states was taken in worst by the visit of Amanullah, and the French papers, while admitting that the French Government made an extraordinary display which upon looking back appears quite ridiculous, assert that England did even worse. When Amanullah came to Europe, he was, of course, still King of Afghanistan, a huge but savage country with a population teeming with warlike. He was the first ruler who had managed to pacify and unify the whole of Afghanistan. For this reason he was clothed with a certain prestige. At Bombay, 25,000 British troops were brought up to assist in his reception. It was a gorgeous show, but in the evening at the state dinner offered by the Viceroy, Amanullah was twenty minutes late. The same thing happened at a parade the next day. The British, who have experience with native Princes and potentates, thought Amanullah's example might have a bad effect on the Rajahs. So they politely informed King Amanullah that he'd better dismiss his Chamberlain and get another one, who would know how to keep time. This was done. The first secretary went home at dawn. These events, slight and insignificant as they may be, caused the British to change their plans in Europe in so far as entertaining the Amir was concerned. Instead of a dinner with King George, Amanullah was invited to luncheon at Buckingham Palace. The Prince of Wales merely met him, who originally the Prince was to have accompanied King Amanullah on a tour of inspection of military depots and army units. After the palace luncheon Amanullah was turned over to the Foreign Office, who treated him as an entertainment. In France he was met at the station by the President and given two state dinners.

Seeing the

"It wasn't Herodotus who discovered Egypt, nor Moses Aeneas. I did it," exclaims a French writer in the preface of a book of travel on Egypt. It is a very fine of mind to be in when a way for a pioneer. There are few pioneers left today to roam the streets of an unknown city with just a compass and a guide. It is like meeting a new friend with whose peculiarities and idiosyncrasies you gradually become acquainted. Some cities are open like books with large letters easy to read. Others are ground mysteries, enigmatical, whirling. Paris is one of the latter. The trouble is that through seeing this or that big building or museum, one gets nothing of the real Paris. Slowly that city unfolds itself to the seeker. But one must leave behind such childish things as one's spectacles. If Paris is looked at through California glasses, for instance, it will appear an awful dirty hole. No broad laws on the Seine, no Moorish architecture and Spanish or Italian stucco palaces. But there is one thing in Paris that even casual tourists admire terribly—namely the amount of photographing it undergoes. That's the Opera. Alphonse Allais was right. Just after the Opera was built, some one asked him what he thought of it. "It is what Americans would call a beautiful," he murmured. He did not say so how he, as a Frenchman, found it.

October Home Reading

By Emilie Hoffman

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1929

FOLKLORE and legends will make delightful reading for the children during October. Tell them how these grew in the lives of young nations. Include in your reading the best from various countries and stress the fact that children of these other lands have heard and loved these tales.

This interest in children of other countries and will give an excellent opportunity to implant feelings of good will toward these children which will establish the right spirit of tolerance. Try to give the young folks an intelligent international understanding. Through these folk tales much can be learned regarding the customs, the art, the literature, etc., of the people of the lands and their endurance, sacrifice and achievements.

In order to cover a wide range it is advisable to read one or more of the good collections of legends and folk tales.

The young children will be interested in "Book of Fables" and "Folk Stories," a large, beautifully illustrated collection of fables from the Chinese, Russian, Spanish and others.

"Stories From the Early World," by R. M. Fleming, is a delightful store of folklore and is listed among the suggested supplementary reading in many schools. "The Atlantic Treasury of Childhood Stories," compiled by Mary Hutchinson Hodgkins, is well selected and attractively illustrated. Norse stories, and there are many of these, are always delightful to school children.

Padraic Colum has contributed several excellent books on folklore and legends. His "Children's Homer" is a collection of Greek legends. "The Golden Fleece" and "The Heroes Who Lived Before Achilles" relates Homeric legends. "Children of Odin" is a story of Norse mythology and "The Boy Who Knew What the Bird Said" gives us Irish folk tales in a humorous and charming manner.

Among American legends "Rip Van Winkle" and "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" are outstanding and should be included in this month's reading.

The list of good books on folklore and legends is long. A look at the book shelves in the library or book shops will enable you to make good selections.

THERE is one resolution I have made lately and I must tell you about it.

BE CLEAN.

I find that when the mirror smiles, I am smiling and when I frown I get a frown back. Really, I have a wonderful looking glass.

The next resolution I am going to make is that my mirror shall smile at me every morning—it shall start the day right.

A looking glass may be a woman's best friend, but there are many men who are afraid of them and they really are so cheap!

Do me a little favor, see that YOUR mirror is clean.

What Society Is Wearing

MISS BETTY GERARD FAVORS JACKET SUIT FOR STREET WEAR

A trim little box coated suit developed in one of the fashion show fall wearers is worn by Miss Betty Gerard on Park avenue.

Miss Gerard, keen to sense the newer fashions in millinery, is wearing a hat modeled much along the lines shown in Paris at the moment. It is not an off the face type, but on the contrary, shows a small brim of the mushroom variety.

According to latest advice from abroad this little cloche-shaped hat is quite to the fore, concealing the forehead and with a turned down brim. It is so light the wearer to show a wide expanse of brow.

Miss Gerard selects a silver fox for her scarf, wears a tight little satin blouse and for feet wears perfect the pump with a small bow.

PLANE CARRIES 170 PERSONS IN TEST

ALTEHRHEIN, SWITZERLAND, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The three-deck airplane Dornier Dox ushered in a new era of heavier than air flying today by rising majestically from Lake Constance with 170 persons aboard and soaring at various altitudes for nearly an hour before dropping to a perfect landing.

Three records fell before the mighty craft which Dr. Claudius Dornier built to demonstrate the future possibilities of planes for transport, especially over the ocean.

First, the Dornier Dox bore 110 more persons than the former record holding Dornier Superwal, which once carried 60.

Second, the Dox lifted a total weight of 52 tons, of which the passengers, cargo and fuel made up 17 tons.

Third, the takeoff was made in 50 seconds, much faster than the Dox ever rose from the water before.

Although the total number on board included 151 passengers and a crew of 19, Dornier claimed a record of only 169 persons carried because one of the passengers was a four year old boy. The lad was neither counted nor weighed in the test flight.

Critics Scored

Those critics who said from the first that the Dox would not fly were given the lie with a vengeance by today's performance. The 130-foot craft, with its wing spread of 160 feet and its many motors, rose easily from the very smooth waters of the lake.

It circled about for 52 minutes, rising to 300 meters, dropping to 100 meters, and then rising again before alighting. It covered 112 miles, but could have done 310 on the fuel it carried.

Dr. Dornier said he hoped to demonstrate that the plane could carry 54 tons—two more than today—in a test at sea level.

Could Carry Bombs

The monster plane, which has a dining saloon, kitchen and small passenger cabins on the second deck, opened up vistas of speculation. Among other things, it brought to the forefront new tendencies in aerial and water transport developed while the five big naval powers are preparing to reduce naval armaments.

If the Dox could be converted into a bomb carrier it would be potentially one of the world's most terrible instruments of destruction, being capable of carrying twenty-four 1,000 pound bombs. With its projected cruising radius of 600 to 700 miles, it could be particularly effective against fleets and naval bases.

PANTAGES TO TAKE STAND IN OWN DEFENSE TODAY

denial that he criminally assaulted the young dancer, but unexpected delays in testimony of minor witnesses kept him from the stand.

Pantages—gray-haired, partially bald and 54 years old—sat nervously in his chair, mopping his forehead with a handkerchief. From time to time he turned and stared over the heads of the crowd at the courtroom clock. Finally he saw that he would not be able to testify before Tuesday and settled back in his chair.

Testimony Scored

The defense today renewed its attempts to pave the way for Pantages' testimony by calling witnesses for questioning regarding the relations between Miss Pringle and Nicholas Dunae, author of her act, but was blocked by the court. The defense contends that the two conspired to frame Pantages after learning he had sold his theaters for $20,000.

Just before the close of the session, Robert Songer, manager of the building in which Dunae and Ivan Sampsonoff lived was called to testify that Miss Pringle had been in the apartment for many hours at a time.

"I think that reflections upon the character of the girl do not prove conspiracy," Superior Judge Charles Fricke said in ruling against admission of the testimony.

Operator Called

Earlier in the day similar testimony by Mickey O'Neill, a booking agent was ruled out, and the court warned the defense to "desist from this line of testimony."

Katherine Stone, telephone operator in the Pantages office, was on the stand most of the afternoon, telling of Miss Pringle's long wait to obtain an interview with Pantages regarding her act.

"Miss Pringle had been sitting there for some time when Mr. Pantages passed through the reception room from one office to the other," she testified. "He looked around the room and Miss Pringle stood up and said: 'How do you do, Mr. Pantages?'"

Heard Screams

"When I heard the screams I ran out into the corridor. I saw a lot of people and then I noticed Miss Pringle run down to the street. I saw Mr. Pantages when he came up to the office. There was nothing wrong with his clothing."

Edith York, a stage violinist, said that she had seen Miss Pringle in the office and that when she heard the screams she hurriedly went into the hall, looked downstairs and then returned to the office. She was the only witness so far to show no inquisitiveness.

Skil Not Good

O'Neill was asked if he had ever seen the dancer in the apartment of Nicholas Dunae, author of her act, and how late at night but was not permitted to answer.

He supported the defense contention that Miss Pringle's skill was not excellent enough for the Pantages circuit when he testified concerning a verbal report he made after seeing a rehearsal.

"I told Pantages that the act wasn't much good and that the conversation didn't mean anything, but that the dancer was alright. The jokes—well, I can't explain how we say it up there—but I told him they weren't right."

The defense holds that the act was vulgar and not fit for the Pantages chain, but that the theater man did offer to place the girl in another act which was playing the circuit.

Two witnesses testified that they saw Miss Pringle in the Pantages theater on Aug. 7, two days before the alleged attack at 7 p. m. and 8:45 p. m. A conversation which took place in a rest room between an usherette and the attendant was not admitted. The witnesses were Helen Davies, a pretty usherette, and Mrs. Laura Rhodes, the matron.

Mrs. Rose Fowler, Pantages' pretty secretary, said that if Roy Keene, assistant manager of the theater, carried a table into the little conference room after the alleged attack there she did not see him do it.

When Miss Pringle was taken to Pantages' main office, sobbing and accusing the showman of attacking her, she screamed: "There is the brute," Mrs. Fowler testified.

Frederick T. Wise, a state's witness who testified two weeks ago that he heard Miss Pringle's screams and accusations, was recalled today while papers showing that he had been confined in the neurotic ward of General hospital, Denver, Colo., were admitted for identification, but no in evidence.

CULT DEATH LAID TO TOOTH

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The death of Willa Rhoads, 16-year old cult priestess whose body was retained for four years awaiting resurrection, probably was caused by septic poisoning resulting from an ulcerated tooth, County Autopsy Surgeon A. F. Wagner decided today.

Violence of weird cult rites was suspected when it was learned that the girl was a member of "The Royal Arms of the Great Eleven," which holds many unexplained beliefs.

Miss Rhoads' body was taken from a home-made coffin beneath the residence of her step-parents. Beside it was another coffin, containing the bodies of seven dogs, purported to represent the seven tones of the Angel Gabriel's trumpet, which was to herald her resurrection morning. The girl's body was almost perfectly preserved by ice and spices.

Mrs. May Otis Blackburn, cult leader, is awaiting trial on 12 counts of fraud brought by Clifford Dabney, oil man, who alleged he lost $40,000 backing cult enterprises after being threatened by the solar system.

"He took me to Texas. Gulnan's night club in New York, then left me alone all evening while he was with another part of the club with another woman. I left him last January when he came home in the middle of the night with a crowd of people pounded on my bedroom door and demanded that I go downstairs and entertain them. # AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Railroads have safely passed those danger signals of prejudice which caused folks to look upon them with fear. Holding aloft the semaphore of progress AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE cleared the track and, today, millions travel in ease and security.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

The Richmond American Legion gridders were completely swamped Sunday at Santa Rosa, when they were defeated 40 to 0 by the Santa Rosa American Legion.

The Richmond team was completely outplayed, and was unable to gain yardage against the formidable line of Santa Rosa. The Santa Rosans had the advantage in weight, their average weight being probably twenty pounds more than that of the local team.

The Santa Rosa aggregation also had a great advantage in experience, many of its players having seen action on university squads.

Among the university stars on the Santa Rosa team were: Trullit, Colorado; Mickey, Washington; Logan, Notre Dame; Brock, Washington; fullback, and Krenner, of Washington. The other boys on the Santa Rosa outfit have seen plenty of action on high school and city leagues, and showed their experience in Sunday's contest.

Though badly beaten, the local gridders fought hard to stem the advance of the Santa Rosans. Cornell, quarterback, was one of the bright spots in the Richmond outfit. The Richmondies always prevented their opponents in former games from garnering a considerable lead, but they were completely outclassed Sunday that, no matter how much fight they showed, they were continually outwitted by the more experienced gridders of Santa Rosa.

The next contest in which the Richmond American Legion gridders will participate will be played against Antioch American Legion, Nov. 3 at Antioch. The local gridders are hoping to have more luck when they meet Antioch than they had in last Sunday's game.

The starting lineup for the Richmond American Legion team Sunday was: Captain Daley, Borgstrom, ends; Brocco, Adcock, tackle; Cooper, Shafter, guards; Myers, center; Cornell, quarterback; Shea, Clark, halfbacks; and Hayes, fullback. The subs for the Richmond team were: Pitts, end; Bonnevill, tackle; and McAllister, halfback.

COREYS LOSE TO GROCERS

The Earl Corey Garage nine was defeated 11 to 3 Sunday at El Cerrito by the Restovich Grocery of Oakland. The grocery men were hard hitters, creating 13 safe bingles. The local players were also far weaker in fielding than the Oaklanders.

The Earl Corey garage squad will meet the Alameda Japanese team next Sunday at El Cerrito at 2:30 o'clock. Thus far, the Garage men have won one contest and lost one.

The line score:

Grocery	11	13	1
Corey's	3	5	3

Batteries: Dikrazia and Vargas; Cabral and San Miguel.

Big Bass Slain By Little Fish

ANTIOCH, Oct. 21.—Cannibalism as practiced by a bass in the San Joaquin river on a catfish proved fatal for the catfish.

The catfish, 10 inches long, caught in the bass' throat, and being unable to swallow the feline navigator, the bass died of starvation, or at least that was the way it was told by Frank Fortado, Antioch, finder of the fish.

Local Marksmen Fourth In Shoot At Leona Range

Firing on an unfamiliar range the Richmond National Rifle club took fourth place in a shoot held at the Leona rifle range Sunday. The 150th Infantry rifle squad took first place; the Olympic club was second while the Golden Gate club was third.

This was the first time that the local club has fired on the Leona range. M. J. Litic is captain of the local team.

JACKIE FIELDS TAKES EASY VICTORY

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21.—Left-hander Jackie Fields, Los Angeles, welterweight champion of the world kept William "Gorilla" Jones of Akron, O., colored contender off balance for most of 10 rounds here tonight, and the title holder easily won the decision.

Fields had an edge in all but the sixth round although his being probably twenty pounds more than that of the local team.

The title was not at stake because Jones entered the ring overweight. Jones appeared to have trained too hard and in the first round, which was one of the best of the fight, seemed to be a little too cautious. Both aimed at the head in that stanza.

In the second frame, Fields started in fighting and piled up points rapidly. Fields cut Jones' eye in the third round and then began to outpace his rival in the fourth.

The fifth was slow with Fields winning by a shade. They mixed freely in the next round and Jones erupted near the end to finish ahead.

After a minute of slugging in the seventh Jones gave away to Fields and tried to hang on. He continued to fire in the eighth and ninth and was barely able to finish a thrilling finish in the tenth.

Clara Bow Present Approximately 10,000 fans who witnessed the bout seemed to be pleased by the performance, but at times their eyes shifted from the ring to Clara Bow, motion picture actress, who sat at the ringside. She received as many cheers as the fighters.

Other results: Frankie Denny beat Lynn Jordan, six; Tom Bennett beat Tony Corbett, six; Billy West beat Joe Martinez, four; Barney Russell, center; Cornell, quarterback; Shea, Clark, halfbacks; and Hayes, fullback. The subs for the Richmond team were: Pitts, end; Bonnevill, tackle; and McAllister, halfback.

San Pablo Nine Loses Close Game

The San Pablo baseball club was defeated 5 to 4 Sunday by the P. G. and E. of Oakland in a contest that was close till the end.

The Oakland squad was leading 4 to 2 from the second inning to the eighth. Then San Pablo got busy and tied the score. The game was clinched by the Oakland team in the last of the ninth, when Fernandez was brought home by a hit from Viera.

Jacobsen hurled for the local team during the first half of the game, and Ball pitched a snappy ball for San Pablo in the latter part. Gaudion played the last game behind the plate for the locals.

The line score:

P. G. & E.	5	10	2
San Pablo	4	10	1

Batteries: Viera and Parro; Jacobsen, Ball and Gaudion.

Thomas Nine Wins First In Winter League

The Thomas Motor baseball team celebrated its entrance into the Oakland Winter baseball league Sunday by defeating the Oakland Eagles No. 7 by a score of 7 to 4. This game was well played by both teams, and the result was always in doubt.

Until the fifth inning, the Oakland team maintained a 4 to 1 lead, but in the fifth inning, the local hitters commenced to bombard the Oakland outfield. Richmond then attained the lead with five runs to its credit, and in the remaining innings, scored two more. Bob Hurst was in fine pitching form for the Motors, and Eurrean played a good game behind the plate for the locals. McCoy at third and Wretzer in left field did some first-class ball catching.

The line score:

Thomas Motors	7	16	1
Eagles No. 7	4	11	2

GAME REFUGES STUDIED BY WARDEN

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21.—After completing a comprehensive study of game refugees, public shooting grounds, predatory animal control and methods of handling various problems connected with these important conservation plans under way in California, J. S. Hunter, of the Division of Fish and Game, is on his return trip after visiting several states.

Hunter, who is in charge of game census and game refuges for the division, was sent on this mission by the California Fish and Game commission in an effort to learn all possible regarding proposed measures to be introduced here.

When the hunting license fee was raised to $2 it was written in the law that one-third of the moneys received from such sale should be expended for the development of game refuges and public shooting grounds. With this development in mind, Hunter was directed by the Fish and Game officials to make such an investigation in various states as would help in solving the problems in California.

His first stop was at the Bear River marsh migratory bird refuge in Utah and the Utah public shooting grounds north of Salt Lake City on a peninsula shaped like a duck. While in Utah Hunter also made an investigation of the duck pond, which has killed a large number of ducks at the Bear River refuge. He attended the convention of the International association of Fish and Game and Conservation commissioners at Minneapolis and held numerous conferences with representatives of various states and provinces with the hope in mind of getting new ideas on refuges, public shooting grounds, control of clubs, purchase of lands, control of predatory animals, etc.

In Illinois, Hunter investigated the park refuge system plan and at Lansing, Michigan, he studied a plan for control of predatory animals and game refuges as well as the laws relating to fur bearers and the control of shooting areas.

From Michigan he went to Louisiana to study duck conditions, fur bearers and refuges visiting many sections there. It was thought possible information of value could be obtained.

California has one refuge contracted for, takes in 3,000 acres near Los Banos. This land and the water to flood it for a duck sanctuary represents an investment of $105,000 and it is with the idea in mind of developing more such areas that this extensive survey was made by Hunter, Fish and Game officials explained here.

Al Singer Beats Panama Fighter

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, N. Y., Oct. 21.—(U.P.)—Al Singer, the Bronx junior lightweight sensation who was the star attraction of the all star card here tonight, had to put on a blazing finish to his finale, against Dave Abad of Panama, to carry off the decision.

Gael, Bronco Babes Will Meet Nov. 11

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE, Oct. 21.—A game that promises to be the freshman classic of the season will be that between the Saint Mary's and Santa Clara yearlings, to be played Nov. 11 at Kezar stadium in San Francisco.

So far, neither of the teams has lost a game. Both have turned back the powerful California Frosh, while Santa Clara has also defeated the Stanford Babes. The Saints trounced all opponents so far, and have amassed a total of 104 points to their rivals' 6.

The fans should get a good game when these two teams, containing the best of last year's crop of high school players clash at Kezar.

Junior Rifle Club Will Get New Charter

The charter for the Richmond Junior Rifle club will be presented tomorrow night at a session in the Woodmen's hall by M. J. Litic, instructor for the juniors.

It is expected that more than 10 new members will be initiated by the club Wednesday night. A large number of girls are expected to join the club. At the present time there are two girls enrolled in the club, and they have been making good scores in target practice, Litic stated.

Good Score Made By Blind Golfer

ALAMEDA, Oct. 21.—Blindness is hardly a thing to be desired, yet there were golfers who, watching Barton Cooper, 14, blind, play golf on the municipal links here recently, envied his "perfect" shots.

To envy his golf form was as near to envying his handicap in life as is humanly possible, for the excellent golf that this blind boy plays is due to a sixth sense which permits him to see within himself those things that people see with the naked eye.

Barton has been blind since birth. He is the son of Lieut. and Mrs. W. F. Cooper, of San Diego. He has been visiting with his mother, the town of his birth, Alameda.

HIGH GRIDDERS WILL MEET CONCORD

The gridders of the Richmond Union high school will clash with Mt. Diablo high school of Concord Friday in a contest to be played on the home field.

A good showing is expected to be made by the local team, judging from the fine offensive game played against St. Mary's Preparatory school of Berkeley last Friday. Although defeated 12 to 6 by the Berkeley team, the local men were usually on the offensive. St. Mary's won the contest by recovering the ball after a blocked kick on the Richmond two yard line, from which point the Berkeleyans carried the ball over for the winning score. If the Richmond team shows as much drive against Concord as they did in the St. Mary's contest, they certainly will be a walkaway for the Concordites.

The Richmond football squad will journey to Lodi Nov. 1 to meet the Lodi high school varsity. Lodi usually has a strong team to place on the field, and the Richmond gridders will have a difficult game to play.

M. E. QUINTET WINS FIRST CONTEST

The lineup for the Lutheran team was: Wilson, Gillan, forwards; Rusich, center; Pimm, running guard; and Armstrong, standing guard.

SHRINERS, ELKS PLAY BALL SUNDAY

Great interest is being manifested in all Elk and Shrine circles in Northern California in the coming contest for baseball honors between the San Francisco Shriners and Elks, which is to be held at Recreation park, Fifteenth and Valencia streets on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 27.

South of Longfellow, defeated Christensen of Roosevelt 6 to 1 and 6 to 2 in the singles. In the doubles, Carlin and Faust of Roosevelt won from Hall and Mythem 6 to 1 and 6 to 3. Garibote and Newman of Longfellow were defeated by Robertson and Stark 6 to 0 and 6 to 2.

The entire proceeds of the game is turned over to the respective charities of both organizations during the holiday season.

A number of former Pacific Coast league and major league players will appear on both teams, concert and drilling exhibition by the uniformed bodies of both clubs will precede the start of the diamond contest.

This year's game is expected to be the hottest contest yet. To date the Shriners and Elks have each won one game and the other two were tied in the tenth inning and called because of darkness.

Henry Werkheim, chairman of the Elks' team and Joseph Harowitz, serving in that capacity for the Shriners, are enthusiastic over the outlook for the game and expect a record seat sale.

Shriners and Elks and their families from all sections of northern California have expressed their intention of attending the colorful game.

Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco will pitch the first ball and the catcher will be Chief of Police William Quinn.

The match would be billed for the world's championship, Johnston said, as Lewis has offered the two principals 60 per cent of the gate, which the matchmaker said would be over $500,000.

Johnston, pleased with the offer, proposes to confer at once with Johnny Buckley, manager of Jack Sharkey.

Vallejo Eleven Holds Oakland Gridders Even

VALLEJO, Oct. 21.—The Vallejo All-Star football team, after being on the verge of defeat, in the last few minutes of the game yesterday scored a touchdown, tying the Oakland Athletic club, 6-6.

The local team was on the defensive through the entire game, only being in the victor's territory in the last quarter when the score was made.

Long runs by "Red" Marr, and Johnny Cerrato, Oakland fullback and quarterback, respectively, kept the ball deep in the All-Stars territory.

Oakland scored first, early in the fourth quarter, after a series of bucks by Whitmore, Oakland halfback, brought the ball within scoring distance. Marr carried the ball over for the touchdown.

Late in the last quarter, Williams, tricky Vallejo back, threw a long pass to his right end, who ran 30 yards to tie the score.

Tilden Makes Hit In London

LONDON, Oct. 21.—(U.P.)—William T. Tilden, tennis champion, essayed the role of the tramp-chauffeur Rawlins tonight and London theater goers seemed to like it.

Tilden, who is billed in extravagant advertisements as an actor, made his debut in the London area in Courtney Savage's play, "I'm Wise." Golden's Green Hippodrome was packed for the opening and the audience called Tilden back eight times to make a speech at the end of the last act.

It was understood that Tilden's projected debut in the west end in the near future was somewhat uncertain because of difficulty in securing a theater.

SHAKEUP OF YANKEES SEEN

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(U.P.)—Bob Shawkey was on his way back from the Canadian mountains tonight to sign his contract as manager of the New York Yankees, and take the first steps towards rebuilding the team for 1930.

Bob Conery, president of the St. Paul American association club will confer with secretary Ed Barrow and Shawkey Wednesday relative to sending several players to the Yankees.

Among them is Eugene (Bub) Hargrave, veteran catcher, Allyn (Dusy) Cooke, leading hitter of the American association, Ben Chapman, third baseman, and a pitcher.

New Staff Three places on the Yankees are definitely open—left field, third base and shortstop. The pitching staff will be made over around George Piggas, Roy Sherid and Ed Wells.

Herb Pennock, Waite Hoyt and Tom Zackary are not likely to figure very prominently in Shawkey's plans. Pennock is about through, Hoyt may be traded, Zackary won twelve games and lost none last season, but he has almost played out his string.

Two catchers, Benny Bengough and John Grabowski, are slated for the minor leagues. Bengough may land with St. Paul and Grabowski with Jersey City.

Gehrig Back The two youngsters, Bill Dickey and Art Jorgeno are expected to shoulder the catching burden with occasional help from Hargrave, who also is expected to act in the capacity of coach.

Lou Gehrig, despite a mediocre year, will again play first base and Tony Lazzeri will perform at second base, but the other two infield jobs are wide open.

Detroit has made an offer for Mark Koenig and the brilliant recruit of 1926 may go to the Tigers. Lyn Lary was expected to step into a regular job at third or shortstop this season, but he may still be a year away. Leo Durocher will have to battle for his place, if any, on the Lam. The Yanks need a crack shortstop badly.

The release of Bob Meusel to Cincinnati leaves left field open. Dusty Coogan, a left handed slugger who murdered American association pitching the past season, or Sam Byrd, who looks every inch a major league star in the making, will get the job.

Earl Coombs and Babe Ruth seem fairly certain of their jobs in center and right field respectively.

SPECIAL TAX FOR SEWER ASKED

Request of the State Sanitary Board to the city council of El Cerrito Monday night that they be given permission to levy taxes against property in El Cerrito for the construction of a new outfall for the sewer system was referred to Councilman Charles Zimmerman and Peter Larsen and City Engineer Ross L. Calfee.

According to Calfee, the present outfalls located on the south and north sides of Pt. Isabel, near the county line, have filled four and one-half feet by silt in the last fourteen years and it is necessary that a new outfall be constructed. The cost of construction will not require a bond issue, but will be done by direct taxation.

A communication from the Richmond Allied Council of War Veterans asking the city of El Cerrito to participate in the Armistice Day celebration to be held in Richmond Nov. 11, was referred to the Louis Hagen American Legion of El Cerrito and the council will act according to their recommendation.

In order to have water mains on Fink Lane, the council instructed city clerk Alice Morris to write the Great Western Power company for a right of way through their property between Fink Lane and Schmidt Lane.

This action was taken on the recommendation of Water Commissioner Peter Larsen, who stated that the city had not received the right of way requested from the Key system and that right of way over the Great Western Power company property will serve just as well.

Light Commissioner Peter Larsen was granted one more week in which to report on the petition requesting the installation of electric poles on San Pablo between the northerly and southerly city limits.

Bond of F. H. Wright, who is acting as deputy treasurer during the illness of city treasurer Mrs. Cora J. M. Simonson, was referred to City Attorney J. H. Peters for one week.

On recommendation of Street Commissioner Phil A. Lee, the council appointed Street Superintendent R. R. Cheek, Sanitary Inspector Frank Blomberg and City Engineer Ross L. Calfee as a committee to investigate the condition of the storm sewer between Main Lane and Waldo street and report next Monday night.

Councilman Phil A. Lee reported that the California Construction company would post a bond of $10,000 for the guarantee of the repair work in the Berkeley County Club Terrace tract sometime this week.

17 Santa Rosa Doctors Face Federal Quiz

ney George J. Hatfield, their names and brief sale of prescriptions will be brought before the federal grand jury at its next meeting.

While no formal action has been taken against the doctors, three persons were named in complaints issued yesterday in connection with the Santa Rosa conspiracy.

They are Herman Lauchere, proprietor of the Service Drug store, Santa Rosa, and Harold Janis and Sing Lou, of San Francisco. Federal agents were en route to Santa Rosa last night to take Lauchere into custody.

Records Probed
Lauchere's records were searched by Walker and E. Hall, agent for Harry Smith, of the special intelligence. According to Walker they found a case of bonded whiskey which came from the same warehouse as a case found in a raid on Janis and Sing Lou, in San Francisco.

The druggists' records showed that he case discovered in San Francisco had been disposed of through 40 permits, issued by the 17 doctors under suspicion, Walker declared.

Janis and Sing Lou, as a result of a raid on Sept. 12 when the case of whiskey was found, were charged with violation of the Volstead act, and were at liberty on $1000 bail when the new complaints were issued.

EDISON LAUDED BY HOOVER AT LIGHT ANNIVERSARY FETE

DEARBORN, Mich., Oct. 21.—UP—Speaking in the reconstructed experimental laboratory of Thomas A. Edison perfected with the electric light 50 years ago, President Hoover paid tribute to the man and women whose long gray hours of research and invention have lightened the burden of human toil.

"Our scientists and inventors are amongst our most priceless possessions," the chief executive said. "There is no sum that the world could not afford to pay these men who have that originality of mind, that determination and industry to carry scientific thought forward in steps and strides until it spreads to the comfort of every home; not by all the profits of all the banks in the world can we measure the contribution which these men and women make to our progress."

The address was the climax of a day's ceremonies dedicating the new Edison Institute of Technology, which Henry Ford has established here to aid young men and women engaged in scientific research. Mr. and Mrs. Edison were honor guests with President and Mrs. Hoover. Scores of famous scientists and educators, including Mme. Curie, co-discoverer of radium, were in the president's immediate audience.

Program Broadcast
Millions heard the tribute over a nation-wide radio chain. Scientific societies of England, Germany, France, Japan and other nations were represented by official delegations in Dearborn. The scene of the ceremonies was the reconstructed early American village which was the childhood environment of Mr. and Mrs. Ford.

The life and achievements of Edison, the president declared, "give renewed confidence that our institutions hold open the door of opportunity to all who would engage in the life of service," he continued. "Every American owes a debt to him."

Relaxing for a minute his wonted serious demeanor, the president catalogued the benefactions of electricity in terms of the map in the street—and the man in bed.

Lauds Invention
Edison's wildest ambition in his search for the electric light, he surmised, "was to relieve the human race from the curse of always cleaning oil lamps and scrubbing candle drips." Or he "may have thought to add to the Institute of Technology.

En route on the old Civil War train, Edison took up the fruit basket which was his only business property more than 60 years ago and turned peddler again for the moment, selling an apple to the president for a nickel and handing out bananas and oranges to the other guests.

Edison Pleaded
The aged inventor, enjoying himself with boyish abandon, then turned to the old hand press in the baggage car, on which more than 60 years ago he ran off the "mixed train."

Copies of one of the last issues of the paper was run off for the guests, the president autographing his for Mrs. Edison, who rode at his side in the spic and span but old fashioned baggage car.

In another corner of the car, was the small work table, and bottle rack which served as Edison's first laboratory in 1862. Because of an explosion in that corner of the car Edison once was thrown off the train by an electric light 50 years ago, which he was ejected then some 50 miles from Detroit at which the Smith's Creek station at which he alighted this morning as the guest of honor at the nation's semi-centennial celebration of one of mankind's greatest benefactions.

Station Restored
Completely restored, the station stands today exactly as it stood on the old Grand Trunk line in the Civil War days. Edison took great pride in leading the President and Mrs. Hoover through the various rooms, pointing out the table on which he learned telegraphy.

Fatigued by his inspection of his old camping grounds, Mr. Edison rested in the Ford home while the President and Mrs. Hoover motored to Detroit City Hall at noon for the official reception. A throng of approximately 100,000 waited in the rain to cheer the chief executive when he appeared on city hall steps with Governor Fred W. Green.

Along the eight mile route from Dearborn, the presidential party was wildly cheered by solid lines of men, women and children. As the procession entered the business section of Detroit, a storm of ticker tape and paper fell into the streets from the windows of towering office buildings. President and Mrs. Hoover made the 20 mile round trip in an open car, despite the chilling drizzle.

Welcomed To City
The city hall ceremonies consumed less than ten minutes, after which the president and his party returned to the Ford home in Dearborn.

Mme. Curie, co-discoverer of radium, who came to Detroit to participate in today's ceremonies, was kept indoors by the inclement weather.

Because of a persistent drizzle, the president abandoned his plan for a visit to the Ford River Rouge plant this afternoon. Returning to Dearborn somewhat fatigued and soaking wet after his drive to city hall in Detroit, the chief executive decided he could not carry through the crowded program arranged for him in advance.

Instead he drove to the early American village of Greenfield at 4 o'clock this afternoon to review from the veranda of the old Clinton inn, the pageantry of the town, the old covered wagon, the butchers' wagon and the tin peddler's cart.

BAR SHOWS
FORD'S OLD VILLAGE
DEARBORN, Mich., Oct. 21.—UP—Henry Ford's restoration of the early American village is complete even into the old time inn in the roadside inn, which replenished the traveler in the stage coach days.

Clinton inn, the hotel of the village of Greenfield, site of today's electric light celebration, boasts a completely furnished bar room on the main floor.

The bar, the rail and the high shelves of bottles attest the faithfulness of the reproduction of the mid-nineteenth century village. Glasses of every description, in orderly array, grace the shelves. But every bottle is empty.

CONTRACTORS LICENSE LAW ADOPTED

and operated uniformly in all parts of the state. The Realtors also asked that steps be taken for the rescinding of the present ordinance, which put a license on plumbers, electricians, plasterers, automobile dealers, and house movers.

Attorney T. N. Calfee, representing the contractors, then took the floor and urged the adoption of the ordinance. He stated a meeting was held with the real estate men last Friday, but there were no results, the two factions being as far apart as the North and the South poles. Calfee claimed the contractors were only asking for an ordinance similar to what the other building crafts had been granted, and it was an effort to standardize things in Richmond. He stated the real estate men were the only class who were opposing the measure. He urged that the council adopt the ordinance, and give it a trial, and if it did not work out, it could be repealed.

E. B. Bull, representing the real estate men, then took the floor and argued that the present state law took care of the situation, and the proposed ordinance was useless. He claimed it would not protect the home builder in any way and would only interfere with the development of the city.

To Draw Lines
Further he asserted there was no intention of the real estate men to interfere with the contractors. Bull also stated that in northern California but 30 percent of the contractors had complied with the state registration law, but that on Nov. 1 the lines were to be drawn very tight, and there would be action. He simply asked consideration of the hands of the council, and felt that the members would do what was best for the city.

COUNCILMAN RUSSELL MEYER—Two weeks ago this ordinance was given first reading, then a week later came a conference at the request of the real estate men. The time has now arrived for either the adoption or the rejection of the ordinance. The arguments that we have heard tonight are just the same as we heard before—nothing new has been brought out. I believe the adoption of the ordinance will be of benefit to the people of the city, and I move its adoption.

The motion was seconded by Councilman George F. Imbach, and then came the roll call, with the result as above stated. Councilman W. W. Scott, before casting his vote made a statement in which he said that he believed the state law would take care of the situation, but inasmuch as the contractors want to try out the plan, he was going to give them an opportunity.

Present To City
Mayor A. L. Paulsen made a brief statement before he cast his vote. He believed the ordinance under the ordinance was purely a present to the city, and did not mean anything to the contractors, but as the other members had voted "aye" on the measure he would also vote the same way.

Attorney Calfee then thanked the council for its action, and stated he believed the ordinance was a step in progress.

One of the two branches of the slough has been closed by filling; this will mean that the bridge will only be about 41 feet in length.

At the present time the bridge is built at an angle to the highway and many automobiles have plunged through its guard rails into the water.

The bridge will be so constructed that curbing approaches will be eliminated.
